

CRIS TOVANI PRESENTS:

The return of the Rocky Mountain Reading Conference 2010

DURING this three-day conference participants will have opportunities to investigate the following:

- * Thinking Strategies-How do they enhance students' abilities to comprehend difficult text and access content?
 - * Making Thinking Visible-How can students demonstrate understanding so teachers can adjust instruction?
 - * Options for Assessment-How do teachers grade thinking, differentiate instruction and provide feedback to enhance student engagement?
 - * Progress Monitoring and RTI-How do teachers monitor student growth and report gains?

FORMAT OF THE CONFERENCE:

DAY 1:

CRIS TOVANI will spend the day with participants, sharing her latest work with secondary students.

DAY 2 AND 3:

CRIS will spend both mornings with the large group. Each day, after lunch, the group will divide. Half of the participants will stay with CRIS. The other half will have the opportunity to attend a breakout session of their choosing. On Wednesday, the groups will switch. Participants who spent the afternoon with CRIS on the first day will have the opportunity to attend a breakout session the following day.

BREAKOUT PRESENTERS:

SAMANTHA BENNETT, author of That Workshop Book and nationally known instructional coach will share her strategies that promote instructional changes.

Current high school content teachers will share how they integrate thinking strategies into their core classes of language arts, math, science, and social studies.

Secondary Literacy Coaches COLLEEN O'BRIEN and JENNIFER KIRKPATRICK will share their work with teachers and administrators and how it can change the face instruction.
